CITY PURCHASES STREET FLUSHER

New Machine Ordered from Studebaker Corporation Will Cost $1,000 Fully Equipped.

ACTION OF BOARD OF WORKS

Tank Has Capacity of 750 Gallons and Uniform Pressure is Furnished by Gasoline Motor.

Chairman John Rockstroh of the board of public works today signed a contract with the Studebaker Corporation, of South Bend, for the purchase of a uniform pressure power street flushing machine which that concern agreed to furnish, fully equipped, for $1,000. The bid was accepted at a meeting of the board Tuesday night after all other proposals submitted were carefully examined and compared. The contract provides that the machine shall be delivered here ready for use on or before March 1.

The flusher is one of the most improved types and the pressure is furnished by a thirty horse power gasoline engine carried at the rear of the wagon. The water tank has a capacity of 750 gallons and the complete machine weighs about five thousand pounds. It is drawn by two horses and can be operated by one man. The equipment includes a water meter so that the tank can be filled at any fire plug in the city and an accurate record kept of the amount of water used. The power pressure machine, such as has been purchased by this city, is giving better satisfaction than those operated upon a gravity pressure plan. It is stated that the power pressure machine is more economical although the original cost is greater. With such a device a block of concrete or brick street can be flushed in less time and with a smaller amount of water.

The bids on the flushers and sweeping machines were received at the previous meeting of the council and were referred to the board of works. Bids on six flushers and two sweepers were received and the board believed that the Studebaker Corporation filed the lowest proposal on the kind of the machine that was desired. Objections to the rotary sweepers were that they could not be operated without raising a cloud of dust and that it would be impossible to clean the streets as satisfactorily with them as with a flusher. It would also be necessary to sprinkle the streets before the rotary sweeper was used and in very dusty weather the surface was covered with a thin coat of mud that could not be removed by the big broom.

Before the board decided to purchase the flushing machine the cost of the water was investigated and the Seymour Water Company agreed to furnish the necessary water at the rate of six cents a thousand gallons. It is estimated that it will cost about four and one-half cents to fill the tank which holds 750 gallons. It is stated that the tank can be filled and one block of improved street flushed in fifteen minutes. If these figures prove correct the cost of sweeping the streets will be greatly ly reduced for under the present system that work costs several thousand dollars each year. It is believed that the city will more than save the purchase price of the new flusher during the coming summer.

The board of works discussed in a general way the plan that will be adopted for flushing the street when the new machine is placed in operation. There are a total of forty-eight blocks of brick and concrete streets in this city and it was proposed that eighteen of the blocks in the business portion of the city be flushed each night. Twelve blocks just outside the business district will be flushed every other day and the others once a week. Under this plan the board believes that a total of 192 blocks will be flushed each week. As it is estimated that it will cost 4 1/2 cents to fill the tank, sufficient to flush one block, the total cost of the water per week is placed at $8.64. The builders of the machine contend that it can be operated by one man who will have no difficulty in driving the team and operating the levers. However, if two men are required the present cost will be greatly reduced. Besides the employees on the wagon one team and possibly two or three men will be employed to collect the trash and debris that collect in the gutters after the flusher has passed along the street.

The decision to purchase a flushing machine was not reached by the members of the board until the matter was fully investigated and the opinion of a number of citizens solicited. The principal objection to the rotary sweeper was the dust that it would leave in its path. It is also believed that the flusher can be operated at the same expense as the sweeper as a larger force would be required to collect the trash which is swept towards the gutter by the broom. If the flushing machine does all that is claimed for it the narrow streets can be flushed by driving the machine along the center.

The committee appointed by the council some weeks ago to investigate the purchase of a sweeping device was advised by officials in a number of places where several types of machines were used, to buy a power flusher as it would do the work more satisfactorily and at the same expense.

METHODIST PARSONAGE AT FREETOWN IS DESTROYED

Flames Started from Kitchen Flue and Spread Rapidly Despite Work of Neighbors.

Fire completely destroyed the parsonage of the M. E. church at Freetown early this morning, the flames having started from a defective flue in the kitchen. The house was a one-story frame building and was valued at $800. It was partially insured.

The house was occupied by the family of Thomas Sprague, as the minister of the church, Rev. J. H. Embry, has not moved his family to Freetown. The minister was recently transferred to that circuit from Kentucky and his family will come in a few weeks. The fire was discovered about 5:30 o'clock and while neighbors made an effort to save the house, the flames gained rapid headway. Some of the furniture was carried out but all of it could not be saved. The house stood in the center of a large lot and none of the surrounding buildings was endangered.

$1 STARTS CHURCH BUILDING FUND

Loyal Devoir Society of Christian Church Take Initiative in New Building Movement.

PLANS TO INCREASE AMOUNT

Many Members of Congregation Believe Larger Church Will be Necessary in Short Time.

Every undertaking, it matters not how large or small it may be, must have a beginning and upon this principle the Loyal Devoir Society of the Christian church has started a building fund by contributing $1. The construction of a new, modern church building has been under consideration by the members of the Christian congregation for some time and in order to crystallize the movement the Loyal Devoirs voted at their meeting Tuesday night to start the fund. The members realized that many times the amount of the first contribution would have to be raised before their plans can be carried out but they decided the best way to get results would be to take the initiative.

The members are enthusiastic over the plan to erect a new church building and believe that the dollar placed on deposit at the First National Bank today will result in larger donations in the near future. A number of the prominent members of the congregation are interested in the plan and are anxious that it be carried to a successful culmination. The society has been assured of their support and co-operation.

Definite plans for the construction of a larger church building have not been made or even considered yet there are quite a number of the congregation who hope that the efforts will be awarded within the next year or so. The present building was erected some years ago and has outgrown the needs of the congregation, according to those who favor the new building. They declare that quite frequently the room is crowded with the membership and that facilities for teaching Sunday School classes are inadequate.

The Rev. W. Paul Marsh, who recently became pastor of the local Christian church, is deeply interested in the plans and shortly after he assumed his duties here mentioned the necessity of a new and larger building. The members of the church view the future as a time of growth and enlargement and believe that the proposed new building with all conveniences would greatly aid in advancing the church.

The Loyal Devoir Society and other members of the congregation who advocate the new building propose that it shall be complete in every respect. There is some talk of selling the present site and purchasing a new location which would be convenient for the members regardless of the part of the city in which they reside. It is declared that if the building is constructed a new pipe organ is altogether possible and that the auditorium will be large enough to accommodate six or seven hundred people.

Several methods of increasing the

ELSNER OPPOSED TO EXECUTIONS

Senator From This County Voted in Favor of the Abolishment of Capital Punishment.

URGES SUPPLEMENTAL LAW

Advocates Passage of Measure to Prevent Pardoning of Murderers Sentenced for Life.

Following the action of the Indiana senate in voting for the abolishment of capital punishment in this state, there has been considerable discussion in Seymour as to the advisability of repealing the law. While there are some who believe the law should be stricken from the statute books solely because of the principle of that character of punishment there are many others who believe that the legislature is making a mistake in abolishing the law unless at the same time some action is taken to carry out the sentence of juries in murder cases. There is manifestly much opposition here to the parole system as it is now conducted and it is the general belief that a repeal of the capital punishment law will be dangerous to the welfare of the state unless means are taken to prevent murderers from being paroled or pardoned within a few years after they are sent to prison.

Senator Elsner, of this city, voted in favor of the repeal of the capital punishment law, but in explaining his vote declared that he was opposed to liberating "lifers" unless new evidence tending to show their innocence were presented.

"I am for the bill," said Senator Edward P. Elsner, "and I would favor another to supplement it. We should have no executions, and we should have a law to provide that no criminal convicted of murder in the first degree may be pardoned unless it can be shown conclusively that a mistake has been made and that he is innocent. And many innocent men have been executed."

Attorneys are showing a deep interest in the action of the legislature upon this matter. They are inclined to hold the opinion that it would be a vital mistake to repeal the law and permit the state board of pardons to undo what has been done by the jury.

"Defendants in murder cases are usually given a fair and impartial trial and as a rule juries are inclined to liberate them unless the evidence is overwhelming against them," declared one attorney today. "So far as I am personally concerned, I am in favor of retaining the capital punishment law unless there is an understanding that murderers sentenced to prison for life will serve their sentences unless subsequent evidence of their innocence is shown. Of course nobody wants an innocent man punished for the wrong doing of another. The trouble with our system today is that the board of pardons sets at liberty prisoners who are guilty of gross violations and violence when the public should be protected from the acts of such men. There have been few death penalties inflicted in Indiana in recent years and the tendency is

GERMANS AND FRENCH FIGHT FOR POSSESSION OF BRIDGE

Kaiser's Forces Attempt to Dynamite Structure but Face Heavy Artillery Fire.

By United Press.

Paris, January 20.—Violent fighting for possession of a bridge across the Yser River is contained in a Nieuport dispatch today. The bridge, it is claimed, was held by the French and under cover of heavy artillery fire the Germans tried to dynamite the structure. The French guns were wheeled into action and poured such a hot fire upon the enemy on the east bank of the Yser that the Germans were forced to withdraw, having suffered heavy loss.

Other violent engagements occurred near the sea coast, the heavy fog and unfavorable weather that have been hindering operations having passed away. The French bombarded and destroyed the German field works near St. George. Captures by the Germans of several trenches in the LaGruis woods in the Argonne region was officially admitted by the war office but it was claimed that the French troops by a series of brilliant counter attacks, retook the positions and additional ground.

OFFICIALS SAY RAIDERS PILOTED AEROPLANES

Londoners Terrified by Thought That Raid was Made by German Zeppelins.

By United Press.

London, January 20.—Growing conviction that aeroplanes and not Zeppelins made the daring night attack on the east coast last night did much today to calm the minds of Londoners. Despite the definite statements of citizens that they saw the Zeppelins, officials express a doubt that the raid was made with air craft of that type.

The police at Yarmouth today declare they saw the outlines of the invading craft which were plainly visible in the early evening sky. They were positive the raiders piloted aeroplanes.

RUSSIAN OFFENSIVE IN THE CAUCASUS MOVES SOUTHWARD

Constantinople Report Says Turks Are Defending Themselves Against Superior Forces.

By United Press.

Constantinople, January 20.—The Russian offensive is moving southward in the Caucasus continues, it was officially admitted today but the war office declared the Turks "are obstinately defending themselves against superior forces."

An attempt by the Russians to flank the Turkish right column has failed, according to official advices.

ZEPPELIN CHILL FELT IN LONDON

Residents of Capital Astounded by News of Raid of Aircraft Less Than 100 Miles Away.

SEVEN TOWNS BOMBARDED

Royal Palace at Sandringham Threatened by the Exploding Bombs but Escapes Damage.

London, January 20.—The "Zeppelin chill" froze timid hearts in London today. The city stood aghast at the news that a fleet of German aircraft swooped down on the east coast during the night, bombarded seven towns within scarcely 100 miles of London and actually threatened the capital itself. Whether the raiders were in Zeppelins or aeroplanes has not yet been determined. Both kinds of craft have been reported.

Bombs were dropped near Sandringham, the royal country residence. The palace was not damaged, although it is reported that bombs fell in the king's estate. King George and Queen Mary had left for London several hours earlier.

The Daily Mail reports that a Zeppelin appeared over Ipswich during the night, but that it did no damage. Ipswich is in Suffolk county, which lies to the south of Norfolk. It is about seventy-five miles southwest of Yarmouth.

All the raiding airships are believed to have escaped. Dispatches from Hunstanton, near the raided area, today deny the report that a Zeppelin was brought down there by the fire of a warship off the coast. On the contrary it is stated, an airship was sighted passing seaward early today, perhaps returning to the German air craft base at Cuxhaven.

Unofficial reports from Amsterdam brought word that three airships, flying eastward were sighted off the coast of Holland early today. They are believed to have been returning from the attack.

Several correspondents in east coast cities are positive that aeroplanes accompanied the supposed Zeppelins. One resident of King's Lynn is quoted as stating emphatically that he saw the outlines of an aeroplane.

Four persons are known to have been killed. Reports concerning the number of air craft engaged range from three to six, with the latter figure generally accepted. Because the raid was executed in darkness, reports are most conflicting. Two persons were killed at King's Lynn. Yarmouth reports two dead.

I was worried sick until he told me—

When he was put to bed, I couldn't figure out how we were going to make ends meet. It takes almost every cent he earns to keep us going.

But the next day he said: "Don't worry, dear. It cost me so little that I forgot to tell you I'd taken out an AETNA ACCUMULATIVE DISABILITY POLICY."

Doctor says he's a pretty sick man, but will pull through all right. And that policy brings us $50 a week while he's too sick to go out—and $25 a week afterward while he can't attend to his work.

You can't imagine how relieved I am. With that money coming in regularly, we don't have to worry.

QUALITY OF MILK DEPENDS ON TREATMENT BY RAILROADS

Twenty Per Cent. Advance in Traffic Rates Allows Rapid Refrigeration Service.

By United Press.
Washington, January 20.—That the quality of the milk sold in our large cities depends largely upon the sort of treatment it receives from the time the farmer leaves it at the way station until it has been received at the big city milk distributing market, has been clearly established by a recent Federal investigation of the milk supply of Pittsburgh, says the Department of Agriculture in a bulletin just issued.

It was also made clear that the excellence of a city's milk supply depends importantly on constructive co-operation between the milk wholesalers and the railroads in the proper refrigeration of the cans after they are delivered for transit. As a result of the investigation, Pittsburgh, instead of getting milk that on an express or freight car got so warm in an eight or nine hours' trip from the country to the city that cans frequently blew up or "geysered," is now getting a product that is put into a modern refrigerator car at the country station and is kept chilled until it is delivered to the home.

After some controversy, referred by the Department of Agriculture, between shippers and dealers a 20 per cent. advance in the traffic rates on milk in the Pittsburgh district was agreed to, with approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission with the proviso that a rapid refrigeration service be provided by the railroads in the transportation of milk. The case of Pittsburgh is fairly typical of the milk situation of all the large cities of the United States, says the Department, and it urges authorities to begin movements in their prospective districts.

To prevent what promises to be an unusual amount of "country damage" to cotton this year, the cotton marketing specialists of the Department of Agriculture are urging growers to warehouse their cotton, or if this is impossible, to build temporary sheds to protect it. They state that even under normal conditions of dollars from what is commonly called "country damage."

Owing to the war in Europe, the present crop cannot be marketed readily, and an unusually large amount of cotton, they point out, is lying unprotected around gins and on the producers' premises. They aggregate amount of country damage, therefore, they say, is likely this year to be far greater than usual, and in view of the fact that there is such a large surplus of spinners and exporters will unquestionably discriminate sharply and exporters will against damaged cotton.

"It is generally believed," say the experts, "that many new warehouses should be built to house the crop; but a careful investigation by the Office of Markets indicates that if all the warehouses at the ports, in the interior, and belonging to the cotton mills were used, every bale of cotton produced this year could be stored without the erection of additional buildings."

Emphasizing the importance of housing cotton, the specialists say: "Few individuals and very few banks are willing to advance money on cotton when it is not properly housed and insured. Those who do so are taking a certain amount of risk and almost invariably charge higher rates of interest than the owner of the cotton need pay if his cotton is properly stored. It is also understood that no part of the $135,000,000 subscribed by the bankers of the country to be loaned on cotton at six per cent. will be advanced on cotton which is not properly housed and stored."

INDICTMENTS INSUFFICIENT

Court Throws Out Cases Against Kokomo City Officials.

Kokomo, Ind., Jan. 20.—The indictments against J. C. Herron, city attorney, and W. J. Webb and W. B. Helmick, members of the board of public works, charged with malfeasance in office have been disposed of. The prosecuting attorney made a statement in court that after examining the indictment against Herron, he had decided it was not good and could not be made good. The indictments against Webb and Helmick were disposed of on a motion to quash, the court holding that the bills did not state the offense with sufficient certainty. Mayor Stidger is the only city official remaining under indictment. The charges against him are based on subject matter entirely different from that in the other cases. A motion to quash the indictment against him is pending.

INDIAN WILL RULE
102,000 RED MEN

Gabe E. Parker to Superintendent
Five Oklahoma Tribes.

QUARTER BLOOD CHOCTAW.

Former Register of United States
Treasury Returns to State Where He Is Greatly Liked—Washington Administration Policy to Have Genuine Test Under His Direction.

Through the devious trail of politics Gabe E. Parker, a quarter blood Choctaw Indian, has just achieved the ambition of his life. Without solicitation or even knowledge on his part he was taken from the principalship of an Indian boys' school in Oklahoma and made register of the United States treasury. Mr. Parker gave up his chosen work—that of helping his own people to become competent, self-reliant, contributing men and women—only after a struggle. Now he is about to return to Oklahoma as superintendent of the five civilized tribes, with broader opportunity than ever before to accomplish the task he had originally set for himself.

Charge of 102,000 Indians.
The job Mr. Parker goes to Oklahoma to fill is a big one. It involves the welfare of 102,000 Indians of the Choctaw, Chickasaw, Creek, Seminole and Cherokee tribes, who desire to become citizens in fact as well as in name. Under the constitution of Oklahoma they are citizens of the state. They are wards of the nation so long as the government retains a control in trust of the 15,000,000 acres of their land, including the richest oil fields of the world and 450,000 acres of coal and asphalt lands. Mr. Parker's job is to carry out the policy of the present administration and to discharge into full and complete citizenship as many of these 102,000 Indians as are ready for the change, or may become so under his direction.

This policy is a new one and, in a sense, a revolutionary one in view of the policy of the government pursued up to this time. Mr. Parker promises to approach it cautiously. He has no plans at this time. He prefers to say nothing now. He has been away from Oklahoma for a year or more and has partially lost touch with local affairs. He does not now know what changes in the former policy will be necessary to carry out the present one, but he is going to Oklahoma to "do his level best." Furthermore, he is carrying back home with him a warm admiration for President Woodrow Wilson and his advisers, who have seen fit to let the Indians of Oklahoma tackle their own problems. It is not because he (Parker) has been selected to lead them, but because the Indians themselves have been recognized both as to capabilities and possibilities that Mr. Parker is so pleased.

His Enthusiasm an Asset.
If enthusiasm for the work at hand is an asset Mr. Parker is one of the best equipped men for his new job that could be found anywhere. He exudes it and with difficulty tries to suppress it, but it is there. His mind harks back to his days in Henry Kendall college, where he was valedictorian in 1899, and to Armstrong academy, of which he was superintendent in 1913, when he came to Washington as register of the treasury. He is proud of the fact that he became head of the Choctaw boys' school, after having been a pupil in it, and he is especially pleased that when he left he was succeeded by one of his old pupils, Peru Farver.

Mr. Parker believes in his people. He believes in the government of the nation and state and in their intentions toward them. He designed the seal of the great state of Oklahoma, which symbolizes the "sisterhood of states" and intermingles the former seals of Oklahoma territory and of the Five Civilized Tribes of the Indian territory. He is known as "Great Seal" Parker for this achievement. He served on many important committees in the constitutional convention of Oklahoma with special reference to the Indians, the schools and taxation and declined to enter politics when his work was through.

As between the two phases of the Indian question, the personal and the property phases, Mr. Parker desires to emphasize the personal as pre-eminent. As a schoolteacher he was deeply interested in solving problems which would bring his charges to a full and complete realization of the responsibilities of citizenship, and he endeavored to give them such a practical application of their book learning as would accomplish that purpose.

Mr. Parker is a man whose earnestness of purpose sticks out of every word and deed. The policy of this administration toward his people is his policy because he believes in it. Whether right or wrong, it is certain to have a genuine test under his administration in Oklahoma.

growing in favor of life imprisonment. However, in many respects it seems a good thing to retain capital punishment even though it is seldom inflicted."

A number of citizens declare that while they would not inflict capital punishment on any defendant because of conscientious scruples they believe the law should be retained as a check upon criminals who fear that form of punishment.

If the sentiment throughout the state is similar to that found here the parole and pardon board will be requested to be more careful in liberating prisoners should capital punishment be abolished. It is probably that at this session of the legislature a bill be introduced providing that murdered sentenced to prison for life shall not be pardoned unless new evidence to show that they are not guilty can be presented.

ENGINEER INSTRUCTED TO EXAMINE STREET WIRING

Action Taken by Board of Public Works Following Number Complaints from Citizens.

As a result of the numerous complaints that have been filed with the city officials and members of the council about the electric light system here the board of public works Tuesday night instructed City Engineer Douglass to make an examination of the wiring in the streets and report at an early meeting. The council has called the attention of the Interstate Public Service Company to the ragged condition of the insulated wires several times but as yet nothing has been done to remedy the situation.

It is claimed that already the franchise granted the Interstate Public Service Company has been violated to such an extent that it could be withdrawn which in effect would cancel the company's contract to furnish current for the street lamps. As soon as the city engineer files his report the council will adopt the form of action to be taken. As the city already has one case before the Indiana Public Service Commission and as that body does not hear but one petition from the same city at a time the complaints cannot be taken before that body for some time.

SOCIAL EVENTS.

AGOGA CLASS BANQUETED.

The young men's Agoga class of the First Baptist Sunday School was entertained at a banquet given by the pastor, Rev. Chas. L. Graham, at the church Tuesday evening. Some time ago the class had the promise of their supper when they should have thirty in attendance at Sunday School. Last Sunday there were thirty-three present and the pastor arranged for the banquet. Out of fifty-five enrolled in the class, thirty-nine were present besides five invited guests.

The tables were arranged in the shape of the letter "A" and a three-course luncheon was served. After dinner speeches were made on behalf of the class by the president, Irving Harris, Robert Clark and Ray Foster. Responses were made by the superintendent, Jay C. Smith, the pastor, Rev. Charles L. Graham, and the teacher, Mrs. W. H. Hughes. A musical program followed, which was enjoyed by all.

Edward Wolfe Dead.

Edward Wolfe, son of Mrs. Carrie Moody, of Vallonia, died this morning at 6 o'clock at the Schneck hospital, following an operation for appendicitis. He was admitted to the hospital on January 11, and was then in a serious condition, having had two attacks before he submitted to an operation. Tuesday morning other complications developed and it was necessary for the second operation, from which he never rallied. He was born in Vallonia sixteen years ago and attended the public schools there. Besides his mother, three sisters and two brothers survive.

The remains were taken to his home this morning and the funeral services will be conducted Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the Wegand Lutheran church, by Rev. Meyer. Burial at the cemetery there.

ENGLAND FEELS BLOW FROM AIR

Zeppelin Fleet Raids the British Coast.

AERIAL BOMBS KILL FOUR

A Number of Other Persons Were Injured by the Invaders' Death Dealing Missiles, While Considerable Property Damage Was Caused by Explosions in the Neighborhood of Sandringham and Yarmouth.

London, Jan. 20.—Last night the Germans delivered their first but long feared Zeppelin attack against England. A fleet of fast air cruisers swooped across the North sea to the Norfolk coast, bombarded Yarmouth, sailed into the interior and dropped bombs on Sandringham, Sheringham and Kings Lynn.

At least four persons were struck dead, three at Yarmouth and one at Kings Lynn, and many are believed to have been injured by the missiles which exploded with horrible force. The first flashes from the Zeppelin searchlights were seen at 8:30 o'clock and ten minutes later the cigar-shaped destroyers were speeding toward the sea, the whirling and buzzing of their engines clearly audible.

Not all of them escaped. At least one was brought to earth and captured, together with officers and crew, at Hunstanton, a few miles from Sandringham. The others apparently regained safe air and returned across the North sea to the base from which they had come. Just how many Zeppelins the Germans used in their first aerial raid is not yet known, but it is probable that three or four composed the raiding fleet.

Royal Family's Close Call.

The royal family had left Sandringham hall, now used for the queen mother, Alexandra, as a country place, only a few hours before bombs rained down near the palace.

It is reported from Sandringham that one of the bombs struck the palace, but that several exploded with terrific violence nearby. There is every reason to suppose that the Germans were informed of the presence at Sandringham of the king and the royal family, and that the attack upon this small and insignificant town was for the sole purpose of striking a blow that would run all England. Apparently several Zeppelins participated in the raid, but whether they followed each other over a given and charted course, or whether they separated at a convenient point near the coast, each to pursue its appointed work of destruction, is not known. Probably the latter was the case, as the bomb-dropping at Yarmouth and Sheringham was practically simultaneous.

Experience of Yarmouth.

At all events Yarmouth, a city of near 100,000 persons, on the Norfolk coast, was the first place visited. The cry went around the city that Zeppelins were flying over. People rushed pell-mell from the houses. Crowds huddled together in Norfolk square and in the many rows of the old town, every eye staring aloft. There was absolutely nothing to be seen except an occasional flash from a Zeppelin's searchlight. Of the dirigibles themselves not a curve or line could be seen. Darkness completely mantled and concealed them.

Uncertainty and idle curiosity were rapidly and shockingly ended. As the searchlights wheeled and flashed squarely over the center of the town, a bomb whirled out of the dark and exploded in the square itself and only a short way from the sea front. This bomb just missed landing in the midst of a group. Fragments of it beheaded a man and injured several persons who were standing near him. The concussion shattered every window in that part of the square and far along in nearby rows. Paving stones and earth were scooped out and a crater three feet deep and several feet in diameter dug by the exploding bomb. Other bombs dropped rapidly. One exploded near the recruiting ground and drill hall. Another dropped near the Trinity depot. Among the injured were several of the volunteers.

Visitations Elsewhere.

At least four bombs fell in the town of Sheringham. One went through a house. In this house a child had a miraculous escape. It had been put to bed but had become restless, so its parents took it out of bed and kept it with them in the lower part of the house. A few minutes after it had been removed from the nursery room the bomb burst right where the child had been lying and utterly wrecked the room. Few persons were injured there and the damage was not so great as at Yarmouth. One or two of the bombs tore great holes in the streets.

At Kings Lynn one person was killed, a boy of seventeen. His father was buried in the debris of a shattered house, but was taken out alive. In another house a mother and her baby were injured. Five bombs were dropped on Kings Lynn and two houses were demolished.

Apparently the Zeppelin shot to earth by a warship was the one which bombarded Kings Lynn. That warship lying off shore searched out the air raider with a powerful searchlight and punctured its armor with a well directed shell or two. The Zeppelin dropped to earth near Hunstanton.

A LULL IN FIGHTING ON WESTERN FRONT

Heavy Snows Retard Infantry Operations.

London, Jan. 20.—The latest from Paris says that the French government reports successful operations by its troops south of St. Mihiel, on the Meuse. The Germans were driven from earthworks in the forest of Lapetrie and lost 500 yards of trenches. Elsewhere snowstorms have prevented infantry movements, but have not silenced the heavy guns. There were artillery engagements in Flanders, in the valley of the Aisne and in Alsace, with no important result. The capture of La Boisselle is confirmed. The Germans have minimized operations in Flanders and France, reporting merely that only unimportant skirmishes have occurred, and that the rest of the fighting was by artillery.

Situation in Poland.

Petrograd dispatches say that new and powerful Russian offensive movements in north and south Poland are a definite peril to von Hindenburg's forces west of Warsaw. Heavy fighting is going on in the Mlava region and west of Radom. Ultimate Russian victories, Petrograd says, means von Hindenburg's retreat or envelopment.

The German government states that Russian attacks in north Poland have been repulsed with heavy losses and that the situation elsewhere in Poland is unchanged.

SHOT DOWN THE STRIKERS

Imported Deputies Fire Into Unarmed Crowd in New Jersey.

Roosevelt, N. J., Jan. 20.—Forty or fifty private detectives, sworn in by Sheriff Houghton of Middlesex county as special deputies to preserve the peace at the local fertilizing plants, where strikes are in progress, made an attack on a crowd of unarmed strikers, practically all foreigners, at Carteret, in this borough, and shot down twenty men before the crowd fell back into the company's plant.

One of the bullet-riddled men died and half a dozen others are reported by physicians to be in very serious conditions.

Mayor Hermann and the police of the borough of Roosevelt are greatly worked up over what they describe as an unprovoked assault by imported non-residents upon defenseless men.

HOW HE LOST HIS CASE

Sleuth Drank All the Evidence In a Blind Tiger Trial.

Logansport, Ind., Jan. 20.—Ella Goff, who was arrested on a charge of operating a blind tiger, was released because Jesse Oldham, a detective, who filed the affidavit, drank up all the evidence. Oldham had no trouble, he says, getting a bottle of beer from Mrs. Goff, but after he stepped outside her home he sampled it. The first drink did not convince him it was not contraband, so he took another and another, and soon the bottle was empty. He then decided it was beer, and left the bottle in the hallway. When Mrs. Goff was placed on trial Judge James A. West released her because Oldham was unable to produce either the beer or the bottle.

Dacia Must Take a Chance.

Washington, Jan. 20.—Notice of Great Britain's refusal to grant a request of the United States government that the former German steamship Dacia be permitted to carry a cargo of cotton for Germany to Rotterdam without molestation, has been received at the state department.

Further Losses to Shipping.

Stockholm, Jan. 20.—During the last fortnight five German steamers have disappeared in the Baltic sea with all their crews. They were lost by striking mines.

NOBODY KNOWS WHO IS RULER

Chaos Taking Over Mexican Government.

MAY REMOVE THE CAPITAL

Among the Numerous Rumors Reaching the State Department at Washington Is One That Hints at the Abandonment of the Historic Seat of Government of Troubled Republic to a Point Farther North.

Washington, Jan. 20.—According to advices received at the state department, conditions in Mexico City are growing more chaotic.

There are even indications that it may be abandoned as the capital of the Villa-Zapata element, supposedly in control in the city. The department was advised that the National Railways general office had received orders to move their headquarters to a point further north. This suggested uncertainty about communications and is regarded here as the possible forerunner of a removal of the capital itself further north.

Just what element is actually in power at Mexico City is not known here. Villa has not yet entered the city, though it was reported he was on the way with a large force. It is now stated that he intends to move further south than Queretaro, where he now is with his troops. There are indications that harmony or co-operation between the Villa and Zapata elements in Mexico City is lacking. General Palafox has issued a statement denouncing the convention forces for occupying Orizaba, formerly garrisoned by Zapata forces. Palafox is Zapata's chief aide and is regarded as representing him in Mexico City.

Situation in the Capital.

Mexico City remains fairly quiet, it is said, but great uneasiness exists. There is a growing scarcity of necessities of life and food prices have risen fabulously. This situation is aggravated by depreciation of the money in circulation there. Prices of imported articles are almost prohibitive.

It is now known that Gutierrez and his companions went to Pachuca, north of Mexico City. Two automobiles containing members of General Blanco's staff, including his paymaster and baggage and money were captured in the outskirts of Mexico City. A large amount of supplies was taken by Gutierrez. Though there is no definite report on the subject, it is thought likely that Gutierrez will join forces with Carranza.

ALL IS QUIET, THEY SAY

Agents of Villa Deny Trouble in Mexico City.

El Paso, Jan. 20.—General Villa will not enter Mexico until "the convention" settles upon a man for provisional president to succeed Gutierrez, to serve out the rest of the unexpired term of Porfirio Diaz, according to Ernesto Fernandez Y Arteaga, "convention" consul in El Paso. He has issued a statement declaring that Villa has stopped in Queretaro, a short distance north of Mexico City, in readiness to enter if called upon to preserve order, but unwilling to enter the city until after the election unless forced to do so "because of the fact that it might cause the appearance of attempting to dominate the situation," according to the consul.

The consul further asserts positively that "the armies of the north and south," meaning Villa and Zapata, "are in thorough accord." He declares that the selection last Sunday of Roque Gonzales Garza as temporary president was only to meet the exigencies of the situation made necessary by the flight of Gutierrez, and that the convention will select another man shortly who will fill out the unexpired term of Diaz. Consul Arteaga declared that all is quiet in Mexico City and that President Garza has sufficient troops to maintain order.

BILLED FOR TWO SPEECHES

Mr. Taft Will Make Addresses at Bloomington and Indianapolis.

Indianapolis, Jan. 20.—Former President William Howard Taft arrived in Indianapolis this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock and will remain until about 5 o'clock, when he will depart for Bloomington, where he will be the guest of Indiana university and make an address tomorrow afternoon.

A small committee representing Indiana university and Yale met Mr. Taft at the train today. He was escorted to the University club, where he will be entertained until his train departs for Bloomington.

Mr. Taft will return to Indianapolis tomorrow evening at 6:15 o'clock. A dinner is to be given him by the Indiana University law school alumni at 7 o'clock. Mr. Taft will leave the city about 11 o'clock.

REMOTE REGIONS OUT OF RANGE OF RELIEF

Conditions In Earthquake Area Are Distressing.

Rome, Jan. 20.—Because of the activity of white slave traffickers in the encampments of refugees police were rushed from Rome last night to the earthquake area. Some arrests have been made and the authorities are confident that a stop has been put to the practice.

New shocks have been felt centering in Calabria, which had hitherto escaped. Cosenza, the capital of the province, was badly shaken and thousands of persons fled from their homes to the open, but so far as is known no one was hurt and very little property damage resulted. Luzzi, near Cosenza, suffered more, a number of houses being shaken down. The same was the case at a half dozen other towns.

It is snowing hard all through the earthquake region, and the cold is intense. The task of relieving the survivors is intensified because thousands of them refuse to return to their homes and prefer to take chances of securing shelter and food elsewhere, fearing a recurrence of last week's horror. Adequate arrangements have been made to take care of all refugees in accessible places, but there are still a great many in the mountain hamlets who cannot be reached for several days and possibly not at all.

RUMLEY COMPANY RECEIVER

Court Names Finley Mount to Take Charge of Big Concern.

Indianapolis, Jan. 20.—Finley P. Mount, a local attorney, has been appointed receiver for the M. Rumley company and the Rumley Products company of Laporte, Ind., by Judge A. B. Anderson of federal court. The Maytag company of Marion, Ia., filed the petition of bankruptcy against the Rumley company, while the Oliver Chilled Plow works asked for the receivership of the Rumley Products company. Judge Anderson fixed Mount's bond in each case at $50,000. The general indication is that the proceedings are of a friendly nature.

The Rumley plant at Laporte is a $30,000,000 concern engaged in the manufacture of farm implement machinery. The Rumley Products company is a corporation formed to market the products of the manufacturing plant.

AWAITING COURT'S ORDER

Stay of Execution Granted in the Case of Leo Frank.

Washington, Jan. 20.—A formal order staying the execution of the death sentence on Leo M. Frank, convicted of the murder of Mary Phagan, an Atlanta (Ga.) factory girl, has been issued by the supreme court of the United States. The granting of the appeal to the supreme court to Frank in his habeas corpus proceedings was regarded as an automatic stay, but it is understood Sheriff Mangum of Fulton county, Georgia, desired the formal order, which specifically states that the execution of the death sentence shall be stayed and superceded until further order by the supreme court.

To Tax the Stay-at-Homes.

Petrograd, Jan. 20.—The minister of finance has presented a bill proposing a war tax on all those exempted from military service, expecting to raise $7,000,000 by such a tax.

May Call For Extra Session.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The indications are that an extra session of congress is unavoidable, owing to the present wide differences on the subject of the ship purchase bill.

MOVEMENT TO AVERT FLOODS

Legislation On the Subject Is Proposed.

WOULD CREATE A NEW BOARD

Bill Introduced In the Senate Today by Senator Fleming of Fort Wayne Proposes to Give to a State Water Control Board the Authority to Order Improvements Necessary to a Flood Prevention Movement.

Indianapolis, Jan. 20.—Embodying the ideas of the Indiana flood commission named by Governor Ralston soon after the disastrous floods of 1913, a state-wide flood prevention bill was introduced in the senate today by Senator Fleming of Fort Wayne. The bill asks to establish a water control board of Indiana, to be made up of the governor, the president of Purdue university, the attorney general and the auditor of state.

The measure seeks to give that board authority to order improvements in the streams of the state, and to give its members power to oversee improvements of a flood prevention nature.

A Ban on the Death Chair.

The bill to abolish capital punishment in Indiana was passed by the senate by the close vote of twenty-seven to twenty-one after nearly two hours of discussion. Senator Chester A. McCormick of North Judson, author of the bill, made the closing argument and was warmly congratulated after the vote was announced. The bill now goes for action by the house.

A resolution embodying the twenty-two proposed amendments to the state constitution, which were passed by the 1913 session, was introduced in the senate and referred to the committee on constitutional revision. It is expected the Democrats of both houses will go into caucus for a discussion of the amendments.

The senate resumed the order of bills on third reading when it reconvened this morning. Half a dozen were posted for third reading, among them being Senator Norman's bill to require private funerals for persons dying from diphtheria, typhoid fever or other stipulated diseases. Senator Ballou's bill to give one-half the amount of inheritance tax to the county in which the person paying the tax resides and the other one-half to the state, and Senator Wood's bill providing for the filing of wills with the county recorder before the death of a testator, also are scheduled for third reading today.

Saves Board of Accounts.

The committee on Judiciary A, after a public hearing on Representative Foster's bill to abolish the state board of accounts and to provide that circuit judges appoint examiners to investigate the books of officials, voted unanimously to report that action on the measure be postponed indefinitely. The committee also voted unanimously to report favorably on Representative Davis's bill to provide for the registration and licensing of lobbyists.

The house committee on criminal code, after a public hearing, failed to take action on Representative Rule's bill to open the way for action under civil law against owners of property used for immoral purposes. The Church Federation of Indianapolis pleaded for a favorable report on the measure, which provides for pleas in abatement by any citizen and would give circuit judges power to issue permanent restraining orders against the renting of property for immoral purposes.

Housing Law in Danger.

Following the introduction in the house of a bill by Representative Van Horne of Indiana Harbor for the repeal of the state housing law, a determined stand has been taken by organizations that have fought for better housing conditions in Indiana to defeat the measure. The bill came as a great shock to the champions of better housing in Indiana who had planned to ask for further housing measures.

The house committee on criminal code reported favorably yesterday on a bill repealing that section of the fish and game laws requiring the payment of $1 for a fishing license.

Senator VanNuy's is holding up the workmen's compensation bills pending the action of the commission appointed by the governor to consider the compensation law matter. The plan is to introduce the commission's bill and those prepared by the manufacturers and labor men and to take the best points of each.

WORK OF BOY HIGHWAYMAN

Took Lessons From "Movie" Plays and Put Them In Practice.

Hammond, Ind., Jan. 20.—Prompted by a "movie" picture of crime which he saw in a theater here, Richard Durand, a thirteen-year-old boy, turned holdup man. He crept up behind Mrs. John Leary, wife of a city official, and dealt her what may be a fatal blow with a club. After robbing her he held up Miss Delia Hartke in a savage attack, and also took her valuables. He was arrested at a skating rink, and was a walking arsenal. He confessed numerous robberies, and said he was practicing so he could beat the "movie" actors in holdups.

SENATOR FAULKNER FAVORS CAPITAL PUNISHMENT LAW

Declares There Are 250 Murderers Serving Life Sentences in Indiana State Prison.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, January 20.—One of the strongest advocates of capital punishment is an editor who hails from Michigan City, the city where the executions take place. Senator John B. Faulkner, editor of the Michigan City Dispatch, is as strong against the bill as Senator-Editor McCormick was for it.

McCormick outlined his reasons in terse language:

"Thou shalt not kill." That command is emphatic and obligatory upon all men and leaves no permission whereby two or more persons may do, innocently, what would be a crime in one," said McCormick.

"The taking of a human life is prompted by a spirit of retaliation or revenge. Legalized killing destroys the sacredness of human life. Capital punishment does not protect society, for crimes do not increase in states where this barbarous custom has been abolished. Today eight civilized countries are living in security though they have done away with it. The people of Michigan, Rhode Island and Wisconsin have lived safely without the death penalty for over sixty years. It is abolished with like result in Kansas, Maine, Minnesota, Washington and Oregon. These states show the lowest percentage of murders and Milwaukee has the lowest crime rate of any city in the United States."

Senator Faulkner gave some figures to press his argument, though he admitted that "maudlin sentiment may force the bill through the senate."

"For ten years I have voted against this proposition, which bobs up regularly. It is purely a matter of maudlin sentiment," Faulkner then proceeded to give some of his figures.

There are, he said, 250 murderers serving life sentences in the Indiana State Prison in Faulkner's city. There are one-third more who committed murders who escaped with manslaughter sentences of from two to twenty years. At least 250 of the 1,175 population of the state prison committed murder, he said.

"There are now twelve alleged murders awaiting trial in Marion county alone. That indicates there must be 200 in Indiana awaiting trial. Doubtless during the past twelve years close to 1,000 men have been murdered in Indiana, yet in the past eight years there have been only three executions."

"The conclusion is that if such preponderance of awful crime exists with the electric chair a possibility, the crime would increase with the chair out of the way. Prospective murderers would then say, 'All I'll get is life, and if I'm lucky I'll be out in ten years.'"

There was an element who called attention to the fact that the jury now has the right to substitute the life sentence for the death penalty and who deplored the fact that under the present system of paroles, "lifers" seldom remain in prison more than a dozen years. These suggested that the legislature repeal the death penalty but pass a law forbidding life prisoners to be pardoned, except on new evidence that shows the innocence of the prisoner.

WOMAN WOULD NOT GIVE UP

Though Sick and Suffering; At Last Found Help in Lydia
E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Richmond, Pa. — "When I started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was in a dreadfully rundown state of health, had internal troubles, and was so extremely nervous and prostrated that if I had given in to my feelings I would have been in bed. As it was I had hardly strength at times to be on my feet and what I did do was by a great effort. I could not sleep at night and of course felt very bad in the morning, and had a steady headache.

"After taking the second bottle I noticed that the headache was not so bad, I rested better, and my nerves were stronger. I continued its use until it made a new woman of me, and now I can hardly realize that I am able to do so much as I do. Whenever I know any woman in need of a good medicine I highly praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." — Mrs. FRANK CLARK, 3146 N. Tulip St., Richmond, Pa.

It will pay you to do so. Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

The Call of the Cumberlands

By Charles Neville Buck

With Illustrations
from Photographs of Scenes in the Play

(Copyright, 1913, by W. J. Watt & Co.)

He lifted his head and sent out a long, clear whippoorwill call, which quavered on the night much like the other calls in the black hills around him. After a moment he went nearer, in the shadow of a poplar and repeated the call.

Then the cabin door opened. Its jamb framed a patch of yellow candle light, and, at the center, a slender silhouetted figure, in a fluttering, eager attitude of uncertainty. The figure turned slightly to one side, and, as it did so, the man saw clasped in her right hand the rifle, which had been his mission, bequeathed to her in trust. She hesitated, and the man, invisible in the shadow, once more imitated the bird note, but this time it was so low and soft that it seemed the voice of a whispering whippoorwill.

Then, with a sudden glad little cry, she came running with her old fleet grace down to the road.

Samson had vaulted the stile and stood in the full moonlight. As he saw her coming he stretched out his arms and his voice broke from his throat in a half-hoarse, passionate cry: "Sally!"

It was the only word he could have spoken just then, but it was all that was necessary. It told her everything. It was an outburst from a heart too full of emotion to grope after speech, the cry of a man for the One Woman who alone can call forth an infection more eloquent than phrases and poetry. And, as she came into his outstretched arms as straight and direct as a homing pigeon, they closed about her in a convulsive grip that held her straining to him, almost crushing her in the tempest of his emotion.

For a time there was no speech, but to each of them it seemed that their tumultuous heartbeating must sound above the night music, and the telegraphy of heartbeats tells enough. Later they would talk, but now, with a gloriously wild sense of being together, with a mutual intoxication of joy because all that they had dreamed was true, and all that they had feared was untrue, they stood there under the skies clasping each other—with the rifle between their breasts. Then as he held her close, he wondered that a shadow of doubt could ever have existed. He wondered if, except in some nightmare of hallucination, it had ever existed.

The flutter of her heart was like that of a rapturous bird, and the play of her breath on his face like the fragrance of the elder blossoms.

These were their stars twinkling overhead. These were their hills, and their moon was smiling on their trust.

He had gone and seen the world that lured him; he had met its difficulties and faced its puzzles. He had even felt his feet wandering at the last from the path that led back to her, and now, with her little figure close held in his embrace, and her red-brown hair brushing his temples, he marveled how such an instant of doubt could have existed. He knew only that the silver of the moon and the kiss of the breeze and the clasp of her soft arms about his neck were all parts of one great miracle. And she, who had waited and almost despaired, not taking count of what she had suffered, felt her knees grow weak, and her head grow dizzy with sheer happiness, and wondered if they were not too marvelous to be true. And, looking very steadfastly into his eyes, she saw there the gleam that once had frightened her; the gleam that spoke of something stronger and more compelling than his love. It no longer frightened her, but made her soul sing, though it was more intense than it had ever been before, for now she knew that it was she herself who brought it to his pupils—and that nothing would ever be stronger.

But they had much to say to each other, and, finally, Samson broke the silence:

"Did ye think I wasn't a-coming back, Sally?" he questioned, softly. At that moment he had no realization that his tongue had ever fashioned smoother phrases. And she, too, who had been making war on crude idioms, forgot, as she answered:

"Ye done said ye was comin'." Then she added a happy lie: "I knowed plumb shore ye'd do hit."

After a while she drew away and said, slowly:

"Samson, I've done kept the old rifle-gun ready fer ye. Ye said ye'd need it bad when ye come back, an' I've took care of it."

She stood there holding it, and her voice dropped almost to a whisper as she added:

"It's been a lot of comfort to me sometimes, because it was yourn. I knew if ye stopped keerin' fer me ye wouldn't let me keep it—an' as long as I had it I—" She broke off, and the fingers of one hand touched the weapon caressingly.

The man knew many things now that he had not known when he said good-by. He recognized in the very gesture with which she stroked the old walnut stock the pathetic heart-hunger of a nature which had been denied the fulfillment of its strength, and which had been bestowing on an inanimate object something that might almost have been the stirring of the mother instinct for a child. Now, thank God, her life should never lack anything that a flood-tide of love could bring to it. He bent his head in a mute sort of reverence.

After a long while they found time for the less wonderful things.

"I got your letter," he said, seriously, "and I came at once." As he began to speak of concrete facts he dropped again into ordinary English and did not know that he had changed his manner of speech.

For an instant Sally looked up into his face, then with a sudden laugh, she informed him:

"I can say 'isn't' instead of 'hain't,' too. How did you like my writing?"

He held her off at arm's length and looked at her proudly, but under his gaze her eyes fell and her face flushed with a sudden diffidence and a new shyness of realization. She wore a calico dress, but at her throat was a soft little bow of ribbon. She was no longer the totally unself-conscious wood nymph, though as natural and instinctive as in other days. Suddenly she drew away from him a little, and her hands went slowly to her breast and rested there. She was fronting a great crisis, but in the first flush of joy she had forgotten it. She had spent lonely nights struggling for rudiments; she had sought and fought to refashion herself, so that, if he came, he need not be ashamed of her. And now he had come and, with a terrible clarity and distinctness, she realized how pitifully little she had been able to accomplish. Would she pass muster? She stood there before him, frightened, self-conscious and palpitating, then her voice came in a whisper:

"Samson, dear, I'm not holdin' you to any promise. Those things we said were a long time back. Maybe we'd better forget 'em now and begin all over again."

But again he crushed her in his arms and his voice rose triumphantly: "Sally, I have no promises to take back, and you have made none that I'm ever going to let you take back—not while life lasts!"

Her laugh was the delicious music of happiness.

"I don't want to take them back," she said. Then, suddenly, she added, importantly: "I wear shoes and stockings now, and I've been to school a little. I'm awfully—awfully ignorant, Samson, but I've started, and I reckon you can teach me."

His voice choked. Then, her hands strayed up, and clasped themselves about his head.

"Oh, Samson," she cried, as though someone had struck her, "you've cut yore har."

"It will grow again," he laughed. But he wished that he had not had to make that excuse. Then, being honest, he told her all about Adrienne Lescott—even about how, after he believed that he had been outcast by his uncle and herself, he had had his moments of doubt. Now that it was all so clear, now that there could never be doubt, he wanted the woman who had been so true a friend to know the girl whom he loved. He loved them both, but was in love with only one. He wanted to present to Sally the friend who had made him, and to the friend who had made him the Sally of whom he was proud. He wanted to tell Adrienne that now he could answer her question—that each of them meant to the other exactly the same thing; they were friends of the rarer sort, who had for a little time been in danger of mistaking their comradeship for passion.

As they talked, sitting on the stile, Sally held the rifle across her knees. Except for their own voices and the soft chorus of night sounds, the hills were wrapped in silence—a silence as soft as velvet. Suddenly, in a pause, there came to the girl's ears the cracking of a twig in the woods. With the old, instinctive training of the mountains she leaped noiselessly down, and for an instant stood listening with intent ears. Then, in a low, tense whisper, as she thrust the gun into the man's hands, she cautioned:

"Git out of sight. Maybe they've done found out ye've come back—maybe they're trailin' ye!"

With an instant shock she remembered what mission had brought him back, and what was his peril; and he, too, for whom the happiness of the moment had swallowed up other things, came back to a recognition of facts. Dropping into the old woodcraft, he melted out of sight into the shadow, thrusting the girl behind him, and crouched against the fence, throwing the rifle forward, and peering into the shadows. As he stood there, balancing the gun once more in his hands, old instincts began to stir, old battle hunger to rise, and old realizations of primitive things to assault him. Then, when they had waited with bated breath until they were both reassured, he rose and swung the stock to his shoulder several times. With something like a sigh of contentment, he said, half to himself: "Hit feels mighty natural ter throw this old rifle-gun up. I reckon maybe I kin still shoot hit."

"I learned some things down there at school, Samson," said the girl, slowly, "and I wish—I wish you didn't have to use this."

"Jin Asberry is dead," said the man gravely.

"Yes," she echoed, "Jin Asberry's dead." She stopped there. Yet, her sign completed the sentence as though she had added, "but he was only one of several. Your vow went farther."

After a moment's pause, Samson added:

"Jesse Purvy's dead."

The girl drew back, with a frightened gasp. She knew what this meant, or thought she did.

"Jesse Purvy!" she repeated. "Oh, Samson, did ye—?" She broke off, and covered her face with her hands.

"No, Sally," he told her. "I didn't have to." He recited the day's occurrences, and they sat together on the stile, until the moon had sunk to the ridge top.

Capt. Sidney Callomb, who had been dispatched in command of a militia company to quell the trouble in the mountains, should have been a soldier by profession. All his enthusiasms were martial. His precision was military. His cool eye had a note of command which made itself obeyed. He had a rare gift of handling men, which made them ready to execute the impossible. But the elder Callomb had trained his son to succeed him at the head of a railroad system, and the young man had philosophically undertaken to satisfy his military ambitions with State Guard shoulder straps.

The deepest sorrow and mortification he had ever known was that which came to him when Tamarack Spicer, his prisoner of war and a man who had been surrendered on the strength of his personal guaranty, had been assassinated before his eyes. In some fashion, he must make amends. He realized, too, and it rankled deeply, that his men were not being genuinely used to serve the state, but as instruments of the Hollmans, and he had seen enough to distrust the Hollmans. Here, in Hixon, he was seeing things from only one angle. He meant to learn something more impartial.

Besides being on duty as an officer of militia, Callomb was a Kentuckian, interested in the problems of his commonwealth, and, when he went back, he knew that his cousin, who occupied the executive mansion at Frankfort, would be interested in his suggestions. The governor had asked him to report his impressions, and he meant to, after analyzing them.

So, smarting under his impotency, Captain Callomb came out of his tent one morning, and strolled across the curved bridge to the town proper. He knew that the grand jury was convening, and he meant to sit as a spectator in the courthouse and study proceedings when they were instructed.

But before he reached the courthouse, where for a half-hour yet the cupola bell would not clang out its summons to veniremen and witnesses, he found fresh fuel for his wrath.

He was not a popular man with these clansmen, though involuntarily he had been useful in leading their victims to the slaughter. There was a scowl in his eyes that they did not like, and an arrogant hint of iron laws in the lively he wore, which their instincts distrusted.

Callomb saw without being told that over the town lay a sense of portentous tidings. Faces were more sullen than usual. Men fell into scowling knots and groups. A clerk at a store where he stopped for tobacco inquired as he made change:

"Heard the news, stranger?"

"What news?"

"This here 'Wildcat' Samson South come back yistiddy, an' last evenin' towards sundown, Jesse Purvy an' Aaron Hollis was shot dead."

For an instant, the soldier stood looking at the young clerk, his eyes, looking into a wrathful blaze. Then, he cursed under his breath. At the door, he turned on his heel:

"Where can Judge Smithers be found at this time of day?" he demanded.

ACT QUICKLY.

Delay Has Been Dangerous in Seymour.

Do the right thing at the right time.

Act quickly in time of danger.

In time of kidney danger Doan's Kidney Pills are most effective.

Plenty of evidence of their worth.

Frank Franklin, 507 W. Jackson St., Seymour, says: "I had a severe pain in my back which hindered me from doing my work. If I was obliged to do any stooping or lifting, I was in misery until I heard of Doan's Kidney Pills. This remedy strengthened my kidneys and freed me from kidney trouble. I can recommend it highly."

Price 50c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Franklin had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y. Advertisement.

FIRE DISTRICTS.

Seymour's fire map shows that the five wards are divided into twenty-two fire districts and when an alarm is given the fire bell gives the number of the ward in taps, then after a pause the district number is sounded. When calling the telephone exchange for a fire alarm always give the street and number where the fire is located. Do not attempt to call by fire districts.
